With the appropriate theft prevention measures in place a company can reduce losses and theft.

We can offer a variety of solutions for different sectors and different occasions. Our services, individually or in combination, include fraud investigations, various levels of access control and store detectives.

Store detectives from Securitas Security Service Ireland can prevent delivery loss through various types of controls. The service, delivery control, can include the checking of goods and/or vehicles. During the checking of goods, the store detective ensures that the delivered goods are in accordance with the shipping notes.

The controls are carried out in connection with delivery to the customer's loading dock and good inwards, often in the presence of the shipper.

Exit controls are carried out unannounced at the staff and personnel exits from the company and can be carried out by one or two guards.

At the control point, staff and personnel shall show purses or bags, etc. that they have in their possession and be able to confirm any possible purchases with a valid receipt or documentation issued from the customer.

The guard will show valid identification and carry out the control with a customer service-minded and friendly attitude in order to avoid making the personnel feel uncomfortable.

The service is for the purpose of hindering and preventing shoplifting, theft and loss in shop environments where the service is carried out by store detectives who act like normal customers.

The store detectives observe especially vulnerable departments where there are items which are apt to be stolen and give suggestions regarding possible adjustments in exposure, which may hinder these goods from disappearing.

In this way, the customer gets an understanding about the scope of loss in the shop. The store detectives work in a way where they do not arouse suspicion or reveal their assignment.
