Securitas is launching new public websites during 2015

Today, Securitas is launching its new public websites featuring a strong focus on potential customers and employees. The public websites reflect Securitas' business strategy with clear focus on security solutions and technology. The corporate website securitas.com and the Swedish country website securitas.se are launched today. The launch of the other Securitas' country websites will follow during 2015.

Securitas' new websites, which includes the Corporate website and 43 country-based public websites, are based on the same information structure, have the same look-and-feel and a new graphic design. The design and the structure are focused on mobile devices.

The Corporate website securitas.com is focused on the target groups investors and media, while potential and current customers are directed to the relevant country websites.

- Our new websites will be a useful and valuable source of information for potential customers and employees, as well as existing customers and employees, investors and media. We have created truly customer-focused websites, where our offerings of security solutions and technology are clear, says Gisela Lindstrand, Senior Vice President Corporate Communications and Public Affairs.
